

30 Today was inevitable. The Ds have no moral conscience. The Rs have no conscience, or spine. We are controlled by a wealthy few w/ an army of technocrats. The most of the rest are just waiting for the $2K checks. It shifts when they realize they have achieved what they wished for, but it is their own irrelevancy.

29 Mitch McConnell single-handedly caused the defeat in Georgia. He did not commit to $2000 relief checks for Americans but was okay with a bill that provides far less to Americans but sends millions to foreign countries like Pakistan.

Trump found the bill ridiculous, refused to sign it and told him to get onboard with $2,000 in the covid stimulus. But McConnell refused to budge and in doing so, allowed the Democrats to claim that they were the only ones who would give $2,000 in the stimulus checks. The Georgia election became a choice of whether people wanted $2,000 or not?

Trump's populist message - $2000 stimulus checks - got hijacked by Democrats and the useless RINOs did nothing to retake the narrative. Mitch McConnell deserved to lose his majority leader position because of his incompetence.

20 He's not incompetent, he's just not on our team. He's a democrat with an R next to his name. He's done exactly what the uni party wanted. To get rid of trump.

10 While Trump was demanding investigations into the fraud, Mitch McConnell undercut the president's message by saying that Biden won and he even said "All Americans can take pride that our nation has a female vice president for the very first time."

Seriously, even without fraud, how was a divided GOP going to hold on to the two Georgia Senate seats? Trump knew how to win and believed that even if he had lost, he should not go down without a fight. He had a duty to get the states to prove that the election was fair. How could he or his supporters expect a fair treatment, after being subjected to four years of hatred and sabotage? What he wanted was not unreasonable. Surrender is not what the base wants. But McConnell and the spineless RINOs were eager to surrender. They did not care much about socialism and crazy leftists gaining power.

How are you going to motivate your voters if your message is "yes, our president lost but we need you to vote for two more uninspiring
